The Canadian Reader is protected by copyright. Subscribers receive one copy of the publication each month and may photocopy each issue for use by all students and teachers within one school.

How to use this resource:

The Canadian Reader is a made-in-Canada teaching and learning resource featuring all-Canadian content. It has three main components; use the entire package, or pick and choose the pages that suit your class the best.

1. Literacy Focus – This generic lesson plan focuses on seven key non-fiction reading comprehension strategies, presented in the following order:
   Issue 1: Using Text Features
   Issue 2: Making Connections
   Issue 3: Visualizing
   Issue 4: Asking Questions
   Issue 5: Making Inferences
   Issue 6: Determining Importance
   Issue 7: Transforming/Synthesizing
   Issue 8: Reading Strategies Review and Assessment

   Teachers may introduce and practice each month's strategy using any of the articles in the issue, or save it for another time or text.

2. Canadian news stories – Each of the three articles is leveled and accompanied by Comprehension Check questions, a Language Focus, and a literacy-based lesson plan and supporting materials. Teach the lessons as they are presented, or pick and choose the activities and assignments you'd like to explore with your students.

3. Did You Know? comic – This comic provides basic information about a current news story or event, or supports one of the articles with background information. It's a great way to engage reluctant readers and build students' background knowledge in a fun and graphic way.

Today, Kevin Mills is on a similar journey. Mr. Mills plans to be the first quadriplegic to cross Canada. He is not running or using a wheelchair. He is biking. He pedals his bike with his arms and shoulders. Those are the only body parts he has full control over. The bike has a power-assist system, like ebikes. That helps, especially when going uphill! Most of the work comes from Mr. Mills, though.

A life-changing moment

Kevin Mills grew up in Guelph, Ontario. He was athletic. He enjoyed biking, scuba diving, rock climbing, and track.

As an adult on vacation in Cuba, he went swimming in the ocean. A wave pounded him to the ocean floor. The accident injured his spine. Mr. Mills was paralyzed below the neck. He learned to steer a motorized wheelchair using tiny head movements. Experts told him this was the best he could hope for.

He refused to accept that. “I just wanted to be as active as possible,” he says. Through therapy, Mr. Mills regained shoulder movement and some control of his arms. This changed his life. Eventually, Mr. Mills and his trainer, Nikki Davenport, began biking together.

Crossing Canada

Ms. Davenport suggested biking across Canada. “It’s something I always wanted to do,” Mr. Mills says. He just didn’t think it was possible.

On May 24, Mr. Mills dipped his tires in the ocean in St. John’s, Newfoundland.
That was the start of his journey. It was also his 43rd birthday. “I want to dip my tires in both oceans,” Mr. Mills says.

Mr. Mills and Ms. Davenport ride their bikes for five to six hours a day. Their route to Victoria, British Columbia, will take four months or more.

They often follow the Trans Canada Trail. The trail has been improved in recent years. It is becoming more accessible.

Challenges

Still, the pair has faced challenges. Ruts and washouts make biking hard. Once, in training, Mr. Mills had an accident. He landed in a ditch with his head under water. That was frightening.

In Quebec, one of Mr. Mills’ special bikes was stolen! He switches between two bikes. One is a backup in case something breaks down.

Mostly, people have been kind. Some have helped with donations. Some have even done their laundry. A private donor replaced the stolen bicycle.

Facing fears

Mr. Mills has two big fears around the trip. The first is the Rockies. Climbing mountains with his bike will be difficult. He is also worried about the descent.

His second fear is public speaking. He forces himself past it. He does it to raise awareness about spinal cord injuries.

"I want people with disabilities to see me out there biking and maybe get inspired to do something," Mr. Mills said. He hopes to start conversations about accessibility.

What questions would you like to ask Kevin Mills?
Comprehension Check

Answer the questions below in complete sentences:

1. How is Mr. Mills crossing Canada?

2. What activities did Mr. Mills enjoy when he was growing up?

3. How was Mr. Mills' spine injured?

4. Where did Mr. Mills start his journey?

5. What are Mr. Mills' two big fears concerning the trip?
Unscramble the words below, then write a definition for each one using your own words.

1. ONAEC: ____________________________

2. OREYJUN: __________________________

3. ACESIBCSLE: _______________________

4. YPARETH: __________________________

5. LCEEHWRAIH: _______________________

6. HEASLNGLEC: _______________________

7. BCCLYIE: __________________________

Before Reading:

☐ Project, using appropriate technology, an image of the following Canadians [See Internet Connections]:

- Terry Fox (set out across Canada on his Marathon of Hope to raise money and awareness for cancer)
- Rick Hansen (crossed Canada in a wheelchair and raised millions of dollars for spinal cord research on his Man in Motion World Tour)
- Autumn Peltier (has become a global advocate for access to clean drinking water in Indigenous reserves across Canada after delivering a speech to the UN at age 13)
- Lyle and Jeremy Thompson (these professional lacrosse players are creating an information campaign #BackTheBraid to educate fans and the public about the history of the sport and its connection to Indigenous language and culture).

☐ Ask students to identify (if possible) who each person(s) is and how they are making a difference. Then, share a photo of Kevin Mills. Read the title of the article aloud and invite students to predict how Kevin Mills is making a difference.

During Reading:

☐ As they read the article, encourage students to highlight or underline important information about Kevin Mills and his cross-Canada bike trip.

After Reading:

☐ Distribute to each student, or pair of students, a copy of What’s Important? Why? (p. 28). Direct students first to identify and record one important fact about Mr. Mills and his journey for each section of the article. Then, for each fact, ask them to infer why it’s important—how does it help us understand more about Kevin Mills, his journey, or his mission?

☐ You may find it helpful to work through the process as a class, using 1-2 important facts from the introduction, such as:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>What’s important?</th>
<th>Why?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Kevin Mills is the first quadriplegic to cross Canada.</td>
<td>He is raising awareness of making trails (and other public spaces) accessible to people who use wheelchairs, bikes, strollers etc. to get around.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>He is doing something no one else has tried or accomplished which shows his courage and commitment to his cause.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Finaliy, at the bottom of the organizer, ask students to identify the most important thing about this article and provide a reason for their judgment.

When students have completed their organizer, you may wish to challenge them to write a letter or postcard to Kevin Mills reflecting on the importance of his journey. You may wish to provide the following sentence stems, to spark their thinking:
- I was really inspired when I read about...
- Your story helped me understand...
- Your bike trip is important because...
- You taught me...

Criteria for Assessment: A reasonable inference is plausible (logical and likely to be true) and supported by relevant evidence (from the article or your background knowledge).

Extension:
- Deepen students’ understanding of accessibility: The Rick Hansen Foundation’s School Program offers downloadable lessons to help students understand accessibility. You will need to create an account before you can access the resources:
  - “Let’s Play: Accessible Playgrounds” (Grade 3)
  - “Accessible or Not?” (Grade 6)
  - “Accessibility Inspectors” (Grades 3-7)

Internet Connections:

The Trans Canada Trail trailheads are located in St. John’s, Newfoundland and Labrador; Victoria, B.C.; and Tuktoyaktuk, Northwest Territories. Label these cities on your map, then trace The Great Trail route using a dotted line. This link may be a helpful resource: https://thegreattrail.ca/explore-the-map/.

A good map is complete, accurate, and visually appealing.
The Trans Canada Trail is a network of local trails that stretches from coast to coast to coast in Canada.

The trail is more than 24,000 kilometres long. The highest point is 2185 metres. The lowest is sea level. It is the longest recreational trail in the world!

Volunteers began building the trail in 1992. It was completed in 2017, in time for Canada’s 150th anniversary.

The Trans Canada Trail is one of the largest volunteer projects ever in Canada.

Much of the trail runs along old rail lines. Depending on the section, it can be used for hiking, biking, horseback riding, cross country skiing, and snowmobiling.

Why not check out parts of the trail near you this Fall?

Four out of five Canadians live within 30 minutes of the trail.

Students Can Work In Word/Google Docs...

Did you know...

. . . that each issue of The Canadian Reader includes a PDF file (complete document) and a Word file (articles and questions only)

Students can complete assignments directly in a Word file. Teachers can email the file to students or post it on the Internet. The Word file also allows teachers to:

- easily modify and format content including changing fonts and text sizes
- create a PDF document and use Adobe Reader’s ‘Read Out Loud Mode’
- save paper and copying costs and help protect the environment
- promote and encourage students’ computer skills

Password Security

There are three ways to access data from a Word file that is password protected:

1) Select the data you wish to Copy and then Paste it into any word processing program. Use Select All to copy the entire document.

2) Import the entire Word file into LibreOffice (or another similar program) and then save as a new file.

3) To remove the password from a protected Word file, use Save As to make a new copy of the file. You can then change the Security settings and remove the password.

Google Docs and LibreOffice

- You can easily upload the Word file to Google Docs and share it with students or other teachers.
- You can translate Google Docs into another language (see Tools>Translate document) but you will need to edit the document to suit your requirements. Google Docs can translate into over 100 languages including Spanish, Mandarin, and German.
- LibreOffice is a free alternate to Microsoft Office and offers the same functionality. It’s easy to install and use. See: www.libreoffice.org
